Election/Restrictions

Applicants' election of Group II, Species B correlating with Figs. 9A and 9B, claims 22-29[30] in the reply filed on 12/21/06 is acknowledged. Because applicant did not distinctly and specifically point out the supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election has been treated as an election without traverse (MPEP § 818.03(a)).

Applicants should note that claim 30 does NOT correlate with Species B as shown in Figs. 9A and 9B or as set forth in the instant specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 22-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Shibata (JP 11-111423).

Shibata et al provide an apparatus for coating a tubular member (32) comprising a coating material source (501) containing a coating material; a first roller (201) having a surface; and a second roller (301) having a surface, wherein the first roller is situated relative to the coating material source so that the coating material in the coating material source can be transferred to the first roller surface; the first roller and second roller are situated relative to each other so that the first roller can transfer the coating material transferred to the first roller surface to the second roller surface, and the second roller is situated relative to the tubular member so that the second roller can transfer the coating material transferred to the second roller surface to the outer surface of the tubular member. The surface of the second roller (301) is rougher than the surface of the first roller (201) because the surface of the second roller has protrusions thereon as illustrated in Fig. 4a/b relative to the smooth surface of the first roller (201). The surface of the first roller contacts the surface of the second roller and the surface of the second roller contacts the outer surface of the tubular member. A blade mechanism (500) removes excess coating material from the surface of the first roller (201). The coated tubular member is subjected to an energy source or heater as evidenced by the last sentence of the abstract because the tubular member is baked. The Shibata apparatus is equivalent in structure to the instantly claimed invention and thereby anticipates the claimed invention even though the Shibata apparatus is not used with a medical device. Note that it has been held that a recitation with respect to the manner in which a claimed apparatus is intended to be employed does not differentiate the claimed apparatus from a prior art apparatus satisfying the claimed structural limitations. Ex parte Masham, 2 USPQ 2d 1647 (1987). “[A]pparatus claims cover what a device is, not what a device does.” Hewlett-Packard Co. v. Bausch & Lomb Inc., 909 F.2d 1464, 1469, 15 USPQ2d 1525, 1528 (Fed. Cir. 1990).

Art Unit: 1734

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 1734

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claim 29 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shibata (JP 11-111423) in view of Kirk Othmer.

The teachings of Shibata have been mentioned above and while Shibata recognizes exposure of the coating to baking, there is no teaching or suggestion of the use of a light source including ultraviolet light. However, it is well known and conventional in the coating art to use a radiation source (i.e., uv light) dry or cure an applied coating as evidenced by Kirk Othmer (see page 616, under the heading, "Curing With Ultraviolet,...". One of ordinary skill in the art would readily appreciate the use of an appropriate drying source including UV light, to dry or cure an applied coating to the tubular member. It would be within the purview of one skilled in the art to use an appropriate source of energy in the apparatus of Shibata in accordance with the type of coating material applied to the tubular member.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The following patents disclose established art with respect to the treatment of cylindrical objects using a roller arrangement: Underwood (US 364,873) and Buchanan (US 792,394).
